Policy

As an Australian-based organisation, any data and information collected is held, used and disclosed in accordance with the Privacy Act 1988. <https://www.legislation.gov.au/details/c2014c00076>

‘Personal health information’ is a particular subset of personal information and can include any information collected about a person in order to provide a health service.

The information we collect about a client can include medical details, family information, name, address, employment and other demographic data, past medical and social history, current health issues and future medical care, Medicare number, accounts details, and any health information such as a medical or personal opinion about a person’s health, disability or health status.

Personal health information also includes the formal health record (written or electronic) and information held or recorded on any other medium (e.g. letter, facsimile, electronic, verbal).

Our practice has appointed the ICT Co Ordinator for the practice’s electronic systems, computer security and adherence to protocols in accordance with Section 6.2 - Computer information security. This responsibility is documented in the ICT Co Ordinator position description. Specific tasks may be delegated to others and this person works in consultation with the privacy officer.

Our security policies and procedures regarding the confidentiality of client health records and other personal information are documented and our practice team are informed about these at induction and when updates or changes occur.

The practice team can describe how we correctly identify our clients using three (3) client identifiers in accordance with Section 7.6 - Client identification to ascertain we have selected the correct client record before entering or actioning anything from that record.

For each client we have an individual client health record containing all clinical information held by our practice relating to that client. Our practice ensures the protection of all information contained within these files. Our client health records are accessed only by an appropriate team member as required, and we ensure information held about the client in different records (e.g. at a residential aged care facility) is available when required.

Please refer to our Privacy Policy and Our Practice Privacy Policy Statement for more information.
